World anthropologies
and privatization of knowledge:
engaging anthropology in public

4-9 May 2016 / Hotel Dubrovnik Palace / Dubrovnik, Croatia

FINAL PROGRAM

WELCOME ADDRESS

It is our great pleasure to welcome you to the International Union of Anthropological and Ethnological Sciences's (IUAES) Inter-Congress World anthropologies and privatization of knowledge: engaging anthropology in public in Dubrovnik, Croatia!

This year's IUAES Inter-congress is intended to provide participants with an opportunity to discuss and develop a comprehensive insight into the diversity of ways in which scientific research and scholarship can be, has been or will be employed to understand and engage in social processes and to consider the various risks brought about by new technologies, global economic development, changes in the world's demographic structure and the increased complexity of managing contemporary societies. In particular, it will consider the extent to which and how privatization of knowledge has become a serious global socio-political threat, not only because it often precludes the general public from knowing about or understanding important new insights in scientific research and scholarship, but also because it results in knowledge being more and more unevenly distributed around the globe to the extent that, if knowledge is privatized, the global south will increasingly be deprived of access to new knowledge and the potential to use it to improve life.

The ethnological and anthropological sciences encompass an abundance of different research fields and perspectives, particularly as they develop in diverse parts of the world. The Inter-Congress will provide participants a unique opportunity to learn about those diverse perspectives in the ways they address a wide variety of pressing global issues and topics.

On behalf of the Organizing & Scientific Committee we wish you a very warm welcome to Dubrovnik in 2016!

ABSTRACT BOOK

Metastatic carcinoma in a medieval period skeleton from Croatia – a case study

Vlasta Vyroubal (Croatian Academy of Sciences and Arts, Zagreb, Croatia), Željka Bedić (Croatian Academy of Sciences and Arts, Zagreb, Croatia), Mislav Čavka (University Hospital "Dubrava", Zagreb, Croatia), Marija Mihaljević (Nova Gradiška Museum, Croatia), Mario Šlaus (Croatian Academy of Sciences and Arts, Zagreb, Croatia)

Panel ID 604: Paleoradiology

Archaeological excavations of the Medieval 'Njive' – Ivandol site resulted in the discovery of a total of 37 burials. Even though the skeletal material was not in a good state of preservation, extensive osteoblastic and osteolytic lesions (approx. 10×10mm in diameter) were observed in an adult male skeleton aged to more than 60 years at time of death. Most of the macroscopically observable lesions were located around the pelvic and the thorax area. Radiographic analysis revealed numerous lesions within trabecular bone that have not penetrated the cortex, and were located throughout the body.

Radiographic analysis was carried out using MDCT unit (Emotion 16; Siemens Healthcare, Erlangen, Germany). Isometric 1.5 mm slices were obtained using 16×1.2 mm with reconstruction increment 1.5. 3D maximum intensity projection (MIP), volume rendering technique (VRT) and multiplanar reconstructions (MPR) provided more details of the bone cavities.

Based on patient's age at the time of death, permeative pattern of lesion and multiple lesions differential diagnosis would include metastatic disease, and multiple myeloma.
